Local Committees on U S. Crop Loan Are Named Friday

Stephens, Routon and Anderson Appoint Township Groups for 13 Towns

FORMS NOT ARRIVED

Application Blanks Shipped From Memphis Are Delayed

The Hempstead County Loan Committee, in charge of placing government crop loans here this month and next, announced the appointment Friday of six district committees to handle local applications in 13 communities.

The county committee, headed by H. M. Stephens of Blevins, and including Roy Anderson and Ralph Routon of Hope, has not yet received the government loan application blanks although a small supply has already reached neighboring counties.

Blanks Are Delayed

According to advices received here more than a week ago the blanks are in transit, but a change in the personnel of the Memphis Seed Loan Bureau may have occasioned the delay.

The loan organization in Hempstead county expects to get into action not later than next Monday, March 14.

W. Homer Pigg, paid secretary retained by County Judge L. F. Higgason to assist the county committee in place of a county agent, is receiving daily inquiries from farmers at his office on Second street opposite the postoffice. Once the blanks have arrived, the loan applications will be handled rapidly, Mr. Figg said.

Local Committees

The local committees named by the county committee Friday are:

Hope: Harry Briant, Hatley White, Pat Duffie.

Patmos and Spring Hill: T. M. Honea, Hope Route 1; B. J. Drake, Patmos; John Martin, Hope Route 1.

Bingen, Belton and Tokio: Earl Martindale, Nashville R. F. D.; N. R. Lewis, Nashville R. F. D.; H. R. Holt, Tokio.

Fulton and Columbus: Brooks Shults, Fulton; I E. Odom, Fulton; R. E. Jackson, Columbus.

Washington and Ozan: B. A. Barrow, Ozan; Wilbur Jones, Ozan; J. W. Butler, Washington.

Robinson Scores U. S. Extravagance

Four Billion Dollar Budgets, Ignoring Revenue Facts, Denounced

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A Democratic legislative program, including sharp curtailment of government activities, was outlined Thursday night in a radio speech by Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas.

Declaring the time has come when Democrats in Congress "are in a position to present to the country important features of a real program of reconstruction," Robinson, Senate Democratic leader, said that "this country cannot afford a $4,000,000,000 federal government."

"Over two years of continued disregard of controlling facts in the fiscal situation and continued $4,000,000,000 budgets coupled with exaggerated estimates of revenue and no effective effort to reduce spending," he continued, "have brought a credit crisis which must be squarely and frankly met."

He advocated this be done by "abolishing boards, commissions and offices, wherever possible, and by limiting future authorizations for appropriations from the federal Treasury to the indispensable needs arising from the emergency upon us."

Other proposals included reviving foreign markets, tariff rearrangement and restoration of domestic markets.

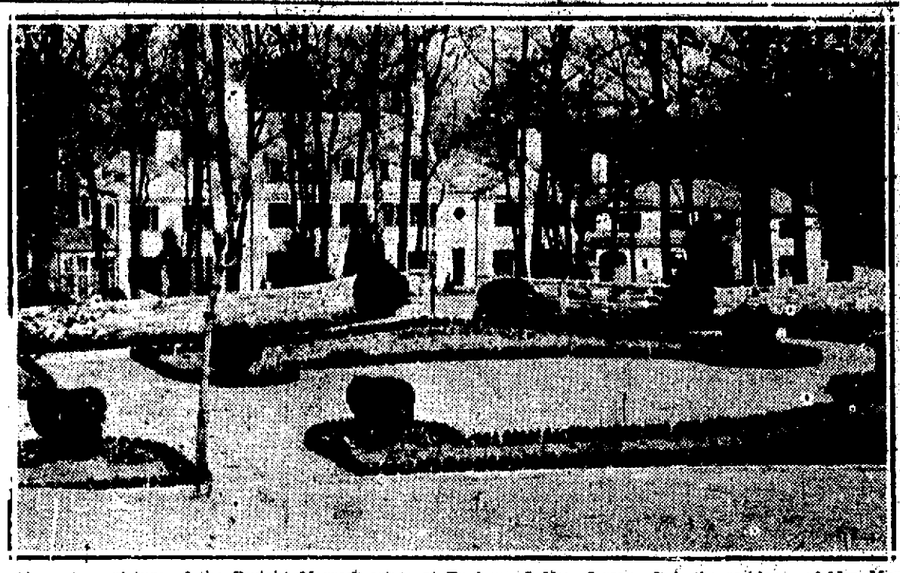

Robinson criticised estimates made by the Treasury as to the government's financial position, saying "we have found these figures as supplied to us almost invariably fallacious, if not regulated to meet the desires of the administration."

Reconstruction legislation advocated by President Hoover was termed "palliatives rather than remedies" although it was "intensely and immediately required."

Palatial Home of Lindbergh Baby's Grandmother

Above is a picture of the Dwight Morrow estate at Englewood, New Jersey. It is the residence of Mrs. Morrow, widow of the New Jersey senator and grandmother of kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. Police for a time suspected that the child would be returned here instead of to the home of its parents. The 20-month-old child was taken from the nursery of the Lindbergh home on the night of March 8th.

Chamber Appoints City Committees

Road, Trade, Agricultural Groups Named For New Year

Hope Chamber of Commerce committees for 1932 were announced Friday by Secretary Joe B. Floyd in a letter to the board of directors.

Committeemen were named by Alex. H. Washburn, president of the chamber, and Mr. Floyd, the list being completed Thursday.

Mr. Floyd called attention to the fact that most of the real work of the Chamber of Commerce is accomplished through its committees, these having been responsible in the past for negotiating many important road projects for this territory, the importation of livestock, and the encouragement of dairying in Hempstead county.

The committees will be asked to hold their individual meetings and organize for the year's work. Mr. Floyd said that community matters demanding action will be referred to the proper committees, and wherever an individual committee discovers a worth-while task, the full efforts of the chamber will be brought to its aid.

Committees are as follows:

Membership: Jno. P. Cox, Ralph Routon, Frank Ward.

Highway: H. J. Lemley, Terrell Cornelius, E. E. Austin.

Transportation: Carter Johnson, E. F. McFaddin, A. C. Monts.

City Development: W. R. Anderson, R. V. Herndon, R. L. Gosnell, D. F. Weaver.

Dairy Development: Roy Anderson, L. M. Boswell, R. M. Patterson, J. M. Harbin.

Trade Extension: Jno. P. Cox, Terrell Cornelius, Geo. W. Robison, C. W. Weltman.

Aviation: B. R. Hamm, Robert Wilson, Lyle Moore.

Industrial: J. R. Henry, Ira Halliburton, Earl O'Neal.

Publicity: Ed McCorkle, Alex. Washburn.

Legislative: W. S. Atkins, H. J. Lemley, O. A. Graves.

Agricultural: George Ware, W. W. Duckett, Nick Jewell, A. C. Monts, W. Homer Pigg.

Fair: Terrell Cornelius, Roy Anderson, W. Homer Pigg, Robt. Huguenin Joe B. Floyd.

Cooking School Will Open 2 P. M. Tuesday

Fourth Annual Free Event for Housewives of Southwest Arkansas to Present Most Interesting Program of Its History—Variety of Topics Will Reach Every Woman Reader Next Week

Next Tuesday marks the opening of a four-day event which The Star believes will afford much enjoyment and profit for its women readers.

Mrs. Kate Stafford will begin the fourth annual free Cooking School at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the stage of the Saenger theater, running from 2 to 4 o'clock each afternoon through Friday. The Star invites every woman interested in cooking, home economics and housekeeping to be its guest.

The lectures and demonstrations will begin on time, and prompt attendance is a request of both Mrs. Stafford and The Star, because after the program starts, late-comers necessarily interrupt and divert attention. There is no admission charge or other expense on the part of the public; the annual school is a courtesy given by The Star, the Saenger theater co-operating food and household supply merchants of the city every spring.

The Star believes that there is something in store for every woman attending the Cooking School. The variety of the lecturer's program bespeaks this fact. She has not confined her topics to those which would interest only one group of women; she has interesting information for the mother, the young married woman, the housewife interested in balanced meals for her family, and those seeking the "tidbits" of cooking.

A marked sequence is noted in the outline of Mrs. Stafford's program, and while any one day of the School will be profitable, regular attendance is urged for the greatest benefits from the entire series.

Half of Rotarians In Digest's Poll

11 of 14 Received Ballots—and 7 of 11 Voted, Questions Revealed

Out of fourteen men attending Hope Rotary club luncheon Friday at Hotel Barlow, eleven had received ballots in the Literary Digest's prohibition poll, and seven had voted, it was revealed upon investigation by the club's program committee.

E. F. McFaddin fired questions at Alex. H. Washburn, two members of the program committee who "carried on" with an extemporaneous program in the absence of the regularly-scheduled speaker.

Other members jumped in with questions also—but when someone demanded that the seven men who voted in the Digest's poll reveal whether they were wet or dry, the committee drew the line.

Answering one question put to him, Mr. Washburn said he believed some slight upturn in national business was indicated by the return of certain national advertising accounts—advertising gathered from Detroit, New York and Chicago—which had been missing from newspapers the size of The Star for the last two years.

MENA—Forty girls and young women students of Folson Academy, Methodist ... at Smithville, Okla., southwest... Mena, escaped injury Thursday morning when fire destroyed the dormitory and school dining room.

The fire had gained headway in the roof when the flames were discovered about 8 a. m. Few furnishings were saved.

Collier Sinks In Gale, Crew Saved

34 Leave Vessel Shortly Before It Takes Final Dive

ABOARD COAST GUARD CUTTER OSSIPEE—(AP)—The battered collier de Bardeleben sank in a heavy gale Thursday, 500 miles off Boston, a few hours after a lull in the storm had enabled the crew to escape from the vessel.

The rescue of the crew, cold, hungry and exhausted after a four-day battle against the gale was accomplished shortly before dawn, in a rolling sea that sent the odds high against the small life boats that carried the marines away from the sinking ship.

After hours of gales and towering waves, an interlude in the storm gave the collier's crew their first chance to reach the safety of the British freighter Laganbank, standing by.

The lifeboats were lowered, the crew took their places and the race across the rough sea was made without mishap. Food, warmth and rest greeted the rescued collier crew after nights of horror.

Two hours later, as the Coast Guard cutter Ossippe arrived to relieve the Laganbank, a new gale blew up and the sea was churned to a frenzy in which no small boat could survive.

The collier pitched and rolled, then settled. Her bow slowly arose above the huge waves and sank.

Sweden Prince Is Married in London

Grandson of King Gustav Forbidden to Wed in Own Country

LONDON —(AP)— Prince Lennart, grandson of King Gustav of Sweden and Miss Garin Missvandt, daughter of a wealthy Stockholm business man were married at the Princes Row Registry Friday.

The couple came here to marry as King Gustav would not consent to their marriage and the ceremony could not be solumnized in Sweden.

Police Discontinue Press Hearings In Lindbergh Search

To Issue Two Bulletins Each Day—Searching Is Continued

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Gangsters Offer to Lend Aid Unheard by State Department

HOPEWELL, N. J.—(AP)—The state police have discontinued press conferences because the press attempted to "dictate to the police" and instead will issue two bulletins, one of a morning and one of a night.

Friday's bulletin said that the police were searching the immediate neighborhood thoroughly but reported that they had no real leads.

Suspects were arrested and released at several different places.

Capone Offer Unheeded

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Attorney General Mitchell said that Al Capone's offer to aid in the Lindbergh baby hunt ha dnot been put before the justice department and "We are not going to do anything about it."

Other officials explained that the gangster might enter a plea for bond and then the United States attorney might answer for the government.

Alleged Hartman Robber Returned

Brought Into Arkansas by Oklahoma Officers to Search for Loot

OZARK—By a queer turn of fate, Carl Jeanaway of Clarksville, one of the two alleged robbers of the Bank of Hartman at Hartman February 18, was in the Johnson county jail here Thursday night.

For some reason not explained to Sheriff Fred Russell, four officers from Sallisaw, Okla., where Jeanaway was being held, brought the prisoner into Arkansas Thursday, although he ad resorted to the courts to prevent his return. Sheriff Russell heard thtat a party was seen in the vicinity of Hartman, where part of the bank loot was believed to have been hidden, and started an investigation.

With two deputies from Johnson county and the assistance of Sheriff M. L. Ledgerwood of Franklin county, Sheriff Russell started in search of the Oklahomans. He found them a short distance from Ozark, after they apparently had abandoned the search for the stolen money, and took charge of Jeanaway. The Oklahoma officers, it was reported, then started for their homes. Jeanaway was taken to Clarksville.

Sheriff Russell said Thursday night he did not question the authority of the Oklahoma officers in bringing the prisoners into Arkansas while a petition for writ of habeas corpus was pending at Sallisaw, filed at the instance of Jeanaway to prevent his return. The sheriff declared the only way Jeanaway could get out of the Johnson county jail, however, was "to break out."

Jeanaway has confessed implication in the Hartman robbery, Sheriff Russell said. Dean Owens, alias Albert Hall, was arrested a short time after the hold-up, and confessed, officers said. He led officers to the hiding place of his share of the loot, $7,229.35. The robbery netted about $12,000, bank officials said. Owens is being held at the penitentiary at Little Rock.

Contract Awarded For Lonoke School

C. R. Carty of Little Rock Low Bidder on First of Two Buildings

LONOKE—C. R. Carty of Little Rock, contractor, was low bidder Thursday at the office of Charles A. Walls, president of the Lonoke School Board, for erection of an eight-room grammar school building. Twenty-three contractors submitted bids, ranging from $24,750 by Barrett Construction Company of Stuttgart to $18,875 by Carty. The next two low bidders were McGregor & Pickett of Little Rock, $19,970 and T. A. Lusinger of Pine Bluff, $19,985.

The grammar school building is the first unit of a new system made necessary by the destruction by fire of the Lonoke High School buliding December 15. The board plans to build a modern high school building soon. John P. Almand of Little Rock is architect for the grammar school building. Work is to start within the next 10 days and will be completed within 90 working days.

Appoints Board to Hear Wage Dispute

Three to Hear Representatives of L. & A. and L. A. & T. Railroads

WASHINGTON—(AP)—As a special board to settle a wage cut dispute between the Louisiana and Arkansas Railway and the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas Railroad, President Hoover Friday appointed Chief Justice Walter Stacey, of the North Carolina Supreme court; Dr. Davis Dewey, economics professor of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Justice Julian Moore of the Colorado supreme court.

The workers refused to accept a wage cut of fifteen per cent but reported that they were willing to take a cut of ten per cent.

Sawmill Worker Believed Killed

Jake Kenton, 23, of Joiner, Last Seen in Fight With Negro

OSCEOLA—No trace of Jake Kenton, 23-year-old sawmill employe of the Kansas City Shook Company missing since Saturday night, had been found Thursday by the posse searching Dean's island in the Mississippi river near Joiner. Officers believe Kenton was killed Saturday night.

John Henry Jones, negro employe of a Memphis concern engaged in moving houses back from a caving river bank on the island, was arrested in Memphis Thursday morning and brought to the county jail here. Seven other negroes, arrested on the island Wednesday night, say that a quarrel between Jones and Kenton followed Kenton's interference in a negro dice game, and two of them said they saw Jones stab Kenton three times with a knife and saw Kenton roll to the ground from the porch of the island store. They are the last persons to report having seen Kenton.

Authorities who first believed that Kenton, wounded, had wandered into the woods and died from exposure, now are considering the possibility that his body had been thrown into the river.

Kenton lived in Joiner with his wife and child, and went back and forth to the sawmill on the island, where his father, Tollie Kenton, was foreman. The wife and father each believed he was with the other until Thursday, when it was established that he had been missing since Saturday night and officers were enlisted in the search. He was said to have had about $200 Saturday night.

Scout Court of Honor Is Conducted at Gurdon

GURDON Ark. — Scout Executive Craig of Hot Springs held a court of honor Tuesday for the members of the Boy Scout Troop of Gurdon, with Josh Hutchison, member of the court committee as chairman of the court of honor. Tenderfoot badges were given to six scouts; star badge to one; first and second class to one; merit badges in swimming, pathfinding, animal industry, home and planning, gardening, pioneering, public health, and reading, one each.

Stamps Merchants Provide Soup Line for Hungry

STAMPS—With the melting of the slight snow which fell this week, which brought colder weather, a soup line was started in the business section here Thursday afternoon. Claud Cox, business man, furnished the house for distribution of the rations to the hungry, and every mercant in ton will aid in furnishing the food which will be cooked each day. The city through plans made by the City Council Monday night probably will bear the larger part of the expense of the soup line. Monday night negroes asked aid from the City Council. All organizations in town have volunteered to aid in this work.

Connelly Testifies At Audit Hearing

Claims His Low Bid Rejected by State on Arkadelphia Hot Springs Road

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)— Testimony that the State Highway Department refused his offer to construct the Arkadelphia Hot Springs road for $6.94 a ton for asphalt laid and instead let a cost plus contract to the Hogan Construction Company for $11.94 a ton was given to the Highway Audit Commission Friday by P. F. Connelly, president of the P. F. Connelly Paving Company.

He said chief highway engineer Christian said his bid was too low.

Christian said he was experimenting with retread pavements.

The job base was let without bids.

Connelly said he had worked on many contracts in other states because he was unable to get any in Arkansas.

He said it was suggested that he needed certain types of new equipment.

$12 An Acre Limit On Rice Crop Loans

Mrs. Caraway Aids in Formulating Rules for Federal Advances

WASHINGTON — Arkansas rice growers will be loaned a maximum of $12 an acre under the $50,000,000 appropriation to aid crop producers, with a $400 limit to any one individual. Where tenant farmers depend upon landlords to furnish water for irrigation, loans will be restricted to $7 an acre.

The Department of Agriculture's rules to aid Arkansas rice growers were formulated in a conference between Dr. C. M. Warburton, director of extension work, and Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas. Mrs. Caraway returned Thursday night from a business trip to her home state.

Salesman Held In $75,000 Robbery

New Orleans Police Allege Confession of 1929 Oklahoma Hold-Up

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Charles A. Meritt, 36, was arrested here Thursday charged with the $75,000 robbery of a messenger of the American First National bank of Oklahoma City, Okla., May 24, 1929 and was said by police to have admitted participating in the robbery. His wife is held as an accessory.

Chief of Detectives John Grosch said Meritt said he received $21,000 as his share. He was uoted as saying he had spent all the money, $4,500 of which was paid for a course in aviation.

Merritt, police said, declared that he and James M. ("Cowboy") Hayes and Russell ("Rusty") Gibson robbed the messenger as he was carrying funds to the bank from the Federal Reserve bank in Oklahoma City.

The Meritts had been living here two months under the names of Charles and Helen Moran. He had been employed as an automobile salesman and she as an assistant in a beauty parlor. Their children, a girl, 12, and a boy, 10, are attending school.

Office Girl Sent On Errand; Returns to Find Man in Stupor

Was Secretary-Treasurer of Hogan Construction Co. of Little Rock

LEAVES TWO LETTERS

Had Testified Before the State Audit Commission During Week

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Richard H. Hogan, road construction Company official and witness last week before the State Highway Audit Commission investigating the highway department was found shot in the head in his office here early Friday morning with a pistol on the floor by his side.

His office girl, who he had sent on an errand found him, when she returned.

He was rushed to a hospital but it was believed that the wound would prove fatal.

The girl opened a door leading into his private office and found him sitting with his head resting against a window sill.

Leaves Typewritten Note

She found a typewritten note on his desk, instructing her to call various business associates and relatives and an undertaking company.

Hogan was secretary and treasurer of the Hogan Construction Company and had testified before the State Audit Commission to receiving $71,000 from the Arkansas state highway department for rental of road machinery during a period of 143 days that the machinery was idle.

The attorney general announced he would seek to recover the money and asked State Auditor Oscar Humphreys to refuse payment on a voucher for $43,000 that Hogan testified he held for the Department as a final payment on a road project on which the machinery was used.

Hogan, besides the note to his stenographer, left two sealed letters.

Attends Audit Meeting

He attended Friday morning's session of the Commissions hearing, having been called as a witness, but when the time came for him to testify he was reported missing.

Later reports said he had met with an accident.

Burns Fatal For Dallas News Boy

Clothing Soaked With Coal Oil and Fired by Companions

DALLAS, Tex.—Howard Day Moore, 14-year-old newsboy, died here late Thursday, three hours after he had run screaming into a busy street from the old post office—his clothes drenched with kerosene and his body a living torch.

Moore and several other newsboys had been playing in the abandoned building, which is in the heart of the business district. Three youths had been arrested and police were preparing to take them to the hospital to be viewed by Moore when the victim died.

"They said I didn't smell good and they wanted to burn me up," Eddie Carroll, ambulance driver, said Moore told him.

The boy told Detective Lieutenant Will Fritz that the other youths were "shooting craps" when they objected to him. He said he did not know their names. They tied his hands with old canvas, he said, and poured the kerosene on him.

Then, according to his story, they shoved him into a room where he fell against a hot stove whichset his clothing afire. He told Fritz that when the boys saw this, they untied his hands and fled.

Almost every exposed part of the boy's body was seared.

"I haven't any clothes now and no home," the youth lamented to physicians who examined him at the hospital. He seemed more worried over those things than over his burns, but he soon became unconscious.

"He hasn't lived at home for about a year," said his mother, Mrs. Rhoda Moore, a widow. "He's lived on the streets, sleeping where he could."

The room in which the youth's clothing became ignited had been fitted up by newsboys as a sort of recreation room.

The Wet-Dry Vote

REGARDLESS of his attitude on prohibition, the average voter has reason to be very glad that the Beck-Linthicum bill to revise the prohibition amendment is going to come up for a roll-call vote in the House of Representatives on March 14.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will be defeated. Even if it should carry it would fail to win ratification by the Senate. But that is not the point.

What matters is that the roll-call on this bill ought to end, for good, the straddling in which so many congressmen have been indulging where the wet-dry question is concerned.

Congress, unfortunately, includes a certain number of cowards in its membership.

They are the representatives who hate a live, controversial issue more than they hate anything else on earth.

They are always willing to take a decisive stand on any issue if they are sure that they know which way most of their constituents feel about it. They spend a great deal of time with their ears to the ground, getting the low-down on such things.

But a lot of them have never been able to satisfy themselves just how the people back home really feel about prohibition. So they have straddled. They have let the wets believe that they are only waiting for a favorable chance to come out openly against prohibition; they have let the drys believe that they are heart and soul for the prohibition cause.

The vote on the Beck-Linthicum bill is going to be the most painful thing that has happened to straddlers in many years. For the first time since the prohibition law went into effect they will have to declare themselves definitely. They will have to come out in the open and say, once and for all, whether they are wet or dry.

This may cause them pain, but it is a good thing for the nation as a whole. The straddler is a contemptible creature, and the nation suffers because there are so many of him. It is pleasant to watch him being forced to get down off the fence—no matter on which side he descends.

Philippine Independence

THE present Congress seems to be preparing to put through some kind of bill definitely promising independence for the Filipinos and setting a more or less definite date for the change to go into effect.

This is, of course, nothing less than plain justice, since the government years ago went on record unequivocably with its pledge that the islanders would eventually get their freedom. The nation's honor will look just a little bit clearer when an independence bill is finally passed.

The Senate is soon to vote on a bill which would maks the Filipinos free in from 17 to 19 years; a bill which will come up for a vote in the House would cut the time to about eight years. Offhand, it would seem that the House bill is the better. Why postpone the process so long? If we are going to give our island wards their freedom, might it not be just as well for us to do it as fast as we comfortably can?

Japan's Necessity

EUROPEAN imperialism in the orient is largely responsible for the present situation in Manchuria, according to Professor Earl E. Sperry of the history department of Syracuse University.

European nations, he points out, have taken up immense territories in the Far East from which the Japanese are rigidly excluded. The English, for example, took over Australia—and, he might have added, the Americans took over the Philippines—and the Japanese, urgently needing room to expand, have nowhere to go but Manchuria.

"The motive of Japan's invation of Manchuria is not greed but necessity," he remarks. "She lacks land to feed her dense population. No state, like Japan, which has the strength to fight will passively allow its people to suffer slow starvation."

In considering the difficult situation in the Far East, that is a point we might well keep in mind.

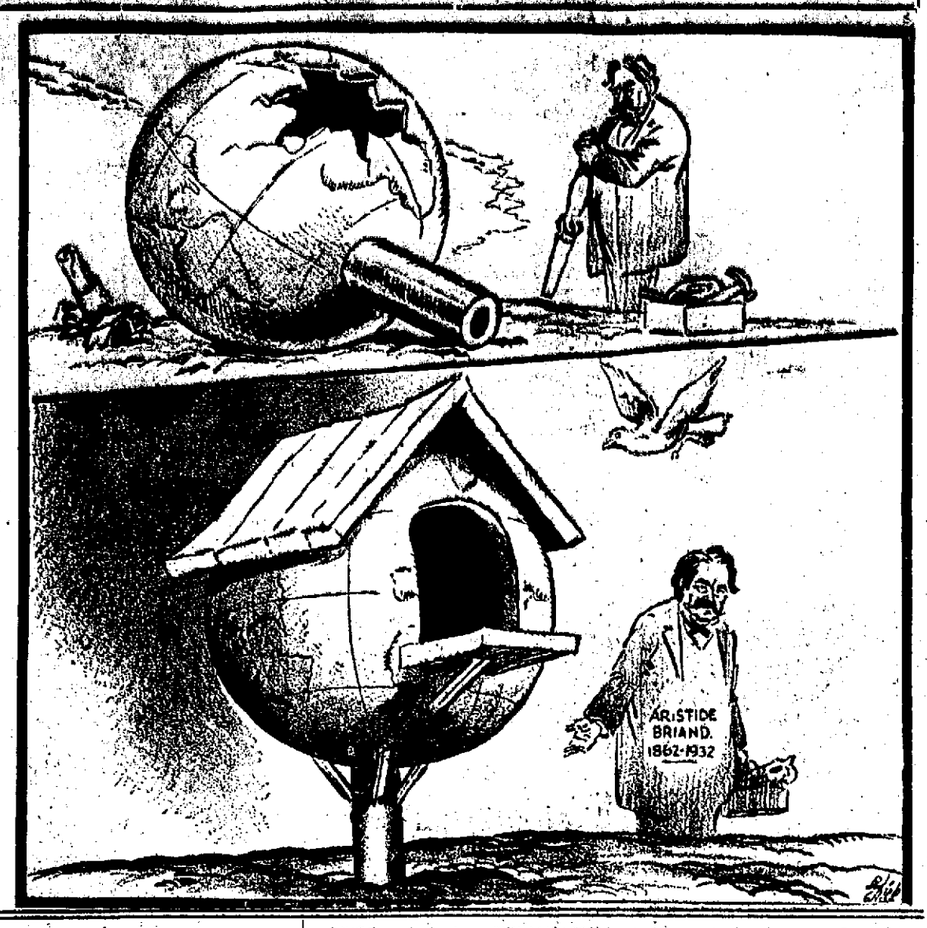

Baseball: The Harbinger of Spring

GLANCING at the sports pages of the newspaper these days, one wonders how one would ever really become aware of the approaching of spring if professional baseball should go out of existence.

There are, of course, such sings as blooming flowers, chirping robins, and so on. But there is not, anywhere, anything quite as certain and hopeful as the gathering flood of news stories from the spring training camps in the south and west.

Whether we ever see a big league game or not, we at least get the stories from the training camps; and when we see them we know thtat winter is about over. And the active, old-time fan, to whom autumn and winter are dull months at best—he comes out of his shell and prepares to start living again. They're playing baseball! Spring is just about here!

Louisiana High Schools Go in Strong for Boxing

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Louisiana's high schools have strongly endorsed boxing, judging from interest in the state tournament this month.

Capt. Francis Brink, coach of Louisiana State university's boxing team, who initiated a state high school tournament, reports that interest in the sport has increased throughout the state among pre-college youngsters.

Lake Charles high school was the winner of the championship title last year, and will be back again this season.

To each one is given a marble to carve for the wall;
A stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all;
And only his soul has the magic to give it grace;
And only his hands have the cunning to put it in place.

Yes, the task that is given to each one, no other can do;
So the errand is waiting; it has waited through ages for you.
And now you appear; and the hushed ones are turning their gaze,
To see what you do with your chance in the chamber of days.

Thursday Night Bridge Club met with Miss Maud Lile at her apartment on West Division street. Spring flowers added their beauty and fragrance to the scene where bridge was played from three tables. The bridge accessories still further emphasized the St. Patrick's motif. An enjoyable salad plate, with coffee, was served. Mrs. Brooks Shults made high score.

—o—

Mrs. Frank Hicks was hostess on Thursday evening to the members of Just a Mere Bridge Club at the home of Mrs. Aline Johnson, on East Third street. The rooms were brightened with bowls of lovely spring flowers and attractively arranged for three tables. Hot chocolate and sandwiches were served. Miss Martha Martindale made high score and the guest prize was won by Ann Martindale.

Teddie Jones, assistant coach of the Hope high school, went to Ashdown Friday, to referee a girls basketball tournament.

Her Winning Smile

She thought it was about time to take a vacation, did Actress Ilse Corseck, when she won $40,000 in the German state lottery recently. So she is reported to have canceled all her engagements, much to the dismay of Berlin theater audiences.

Mrs. Terrell Cornelius had as guests at her home on South Pine street, the members of the Thursday Bridge Club and a number of special guests. The St. Patrick motif was featured throughout the decorations, bridge accessories and refreshments. Contract bridge was played from three tables with Mrs. B. B. Brown winning the high score favors. At the conclusion of the game a most tempting plate lunch was served with hot coffee.

Mrs. Jack Bush entertained the members of the Friday Contract Bridge Club and a number of special guests at a most attractive luncheon bridge on Thursday, at the New Capitol Hotel. The central decoration of the perfectly appointed long dining table represented an Easter garden, and covers were laid for 12. Following the lunch contract bridge was played from three tables, with Mrs. Floyd Porterfield scoring high for the club members, and Mrs. Martin Van Pool for the guests. Guests other than members of the club included Mrs. Pool, Mrs. Brents McPherson, Mrs. L. W. Young, Mrs. E. P. Stewart, Mrs. R. D. Franklin, and Mrs. Elma Hecht.

Costly Stew

TACOMA, Wash.—Stew is one of the world's commonest dishes, but the Joe Marchesini family found it can be one of the most expensive. They were having stew for dinner when Game Warden George Mitchell walked in. He sniffed the stew, inspected it, and found the breasts of three quails in it. As quails are protected in this state, Joe was fined $30—$10 for each bird.

Negro Slain After Killing Two Police

Third Officer and Trusty Wounded in New Orleans Jail Battle

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — Running amuck with pistols and a pump gun in the little 12th precinct police station here Wednesday, Percy Thompson, 28, negro, held off a hundred officers for an hour, shot and killed two policemen, wounded a third officer and a negro trusty and two hours later was slain while being transported in a police automobile.

The dead are Patrolman Cornelius Ford and Corporal George Weidert. The wounded are Patrolman Albert Oestricher, with a bullet wound in the abdomen, and William King, the negro trusty.

Thompson was shot in the chest as he was rushed in his unlocked cell by a group of officers led by Harry Gregson, chief of detectives. He was taken to Charity hospital for treatment of his first wound. There Thompson told officers that he rebelled over a beating with a rubber hose, given him by officers in the 12th precinct station. He said he snatched Officer Ford's pistol and shot him.

On being taken from the hospital to the First Precinct station, Thompson was said by Officers Vick Swanson and James Smith, accompanying him, to have snatched at Swanson's pistol holster in an attempt to get his revolver. Swanson shot the negro in the heart and Thompson died a few minutes later.

How Garbo Hides Her Feet

This picture of Greta Garbo and John Barrymore, two of the screen's greatest stars, is an informal snapshot made as they waited for their cues in the new production in which they both appear. It shows Miss Garbo wearing the soft slippers which she wears when not actually before the camera. Note that one is entirely and the other partially covered by her trailing dress. The size of her feet has long been a matter of conjecture around the studio.

DeQueen Woman Wins Garden Prize

Mrs. D. A. Fore Awarded Third Place in Competition

DEQUEEN—Announcement that Mrs. D. A. Fore, member of the Pullman home demonstration club, placed third in the Southwest district in the state garden contest in 1931 has been received by the home demonstration agent, Miss Mildred Cantlon.

Last year Mrs. Fore raised a garden on a plot 75 by 90 feet for her family of three. The garden was planted on ground tat was fertilized with a 4-8-6 fertilizer, and later the plants were side dressed with nitrate of soda. Hot beds and cold frames were used to produce plants needed for the garden. Mrs. Fore had a year-round garden, having some fresh vegetables available for her table all the year.

Duirng the summer months, Mr. and Mrs. Fore operated a roadside market, where many of the vegetables and fruits from their farm were marketed. Some of the products also were marketed in the stores of DeQueen. The roadside market was put up at a cost of $1.50 and was operated eight weeks, bringing in a net pofit of $341.40. Grapes, strawberries, peaches, sweet corn, field peas and cantaloupes were the best sellers.

Mrs. Fore canned over 400 quarts of fruit and vegetables from her garden and from the home orchard, supplementing this with 60 quarts of meat which was canned from a beew raised on their farm. Mrs. Fore's garden contained the following: lettuce, mustard, tendergreens, beans, cabbage, spinach, tomatoes, carrots, eggplant, okra, radishes, lima beans, beets, sage, garlic celeraic, turnips, onions, sweet corn, strawberries, rhubarb, blackberries, tame huckleberries, asparagus peas (both English and the field varieties), Irish potatoes and sweet potatoes, making a total of 28 varieties.

Students engagements to marry at Denison university, Granville, O., declined from 21 to 1928 to 12 in 1931.

Deny Hoover Failed to Co-operate in Economy

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Answering a democratic contention that President Hoover had failed to co-operate with the special economy committee set up in the house, the White House Wednesday in a formal statement listed suggestions made by him designed to reduce expenditures through reorganizing the government and eliminating useless functions.

Representative Byrns of Tennessee, as chairman of the economy committee, Tuesday night said the president had communicated with it only through the press and had submitted no definite proposals.

The White House statement said the president had instructed "all officials of the government to co-operate in full with the committee" immediately after its appointment.

"Some of these reports or suggestions by departmental heads have already been completed and laid before the committee," the statement said. "Others are in progress."

the dime-a-dance girl

By Jean Clayton

copyright 1932 NEA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful adventuress, fails to love with STEVEN HARROWGATE, young millionaire whom she meets at Peterson's dance hall where she works as a dime-a-dance girl. Later he comes to engage in Ellen's apartment. Rowena, a fellow dance hall girl shows Ellen a picture of her fiancee, Bert Armstead, who is coming to marry her. Steven is made of gratitude for Ellen's refusal to marry. STEVEN HARROWGATE, tired and wealthy young son of a rich banker, falls in love with ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful dance hall girl. Ellen refuses to marry him because she loves BERT ARMSTEAD, engaged to Myra's sister, Myra.

Ellen has been married and divorced. Another acquaintance has divorce from LINDA GRAYSON. Ellen, and, fearing talk of the divorce may be revived, he and Ellen agree to keep their affair secret. Myra and Bert are to be married the same day as Ellen and Barclay.

Two days before her wedding Ellen goes to the offices of LEWIS & FRENNERGART, Matrimonial Attorneys, where her fiance is to sign papers settling a fortune on her. She knows Myra's fellowmen her to be a gold-digger and insists that the settlement papers wait until after the marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

THE next two days passed at such a pace that Ellen felt guilty when she took time to snatch a few hours sleep. There were so many, many things to do. Such things as trunks and laundry tags to think of. There was that hurried trip for a riding habit, when Steven told Ellen they would ride in London.

Oh, there were millions of things to do.

The Rossiter household moved back and forth from the Brooklyn apartment to the hospital until Mike became as feverish with excitement as his elders. Molly's suggestion that the ceremonies take place in the boy's hospital room was flatly vetoed.

There were the hours spent in the cunning two rooms, kitchenette and bath where Myra and Bert were at last to begin the great adventure. Fortunately this was only two doors from the old apartment. Ellen and Myra were in and out of the place at all times of the day and night.

The girls sewed on chintz draperies and slip-covers. They hemmed tea-towels by the dozen while Bert, humming in that tuneless way of his, lacquered a bedroom suite he and Myra had bought for a song.

The living room furniture was overstuffed, a comfortable and ugly suite bought on the installment plan. Ellen was too wise to suggest that she be allowed to help. Myra was ecstatic at finding the tawdry things that would fit her budget.

Late in the afternoon of the day before the wedding Ellen went out to buy tacks for Bert. She found them sooner than she expected and hurried back. The door had been left on the latch and she stepped into the disordered living room, then stepped out as quickly, her heart pounding and her face suffused with crimson. She waiting outside, confused and feeling the beginning of a great fear.

BERT and Myra had stood in the middle of the small room, lips upon lips, bodies pressed together, clasped close in each other's arms. They had been oblivious of her presence, oblivious of everything except the burning flame that enveloped them.

Was that what Myra had tried to tell her about so long ago when she had said only love mattered? That embrace had nothing in common with the kisses Ellen had seen her sister and Bert exchange before. Was that what Steven wanted? Was that what she had promised to give him? She could never, never kiss Steven that way.

She waited a long while before rapping on the door. When she entered Myra was sewing a towel and Bert had returned to his painting. Ellen glanced a little foolishly from one to the other.

Bert casually thanked her for the tacks, took them and went into the kitchenette. They heard him pounding with the hammer. Ellen picked up the chintz curtain she had been lining, hunted for her needle and set to work again. Unconsciously she avoided her sister's eyes.

"You came in on us, didn't you?" asked Myra after a pause.

"Yes," admitted Ellen uncomfortably. "I didn't think you knew."

Myra did not appear to be particularly disturbed. A little smile played on her lips and touched her eyes. She was a trifle embarrassed but proud and thrilled, too, as she stumblingly tried to explain to Ellen that Bert's love was just as strong and as sure as it had ever been.

"It's all come back," Myra said. "And Ellen, I'm so happy I can hardly breathe. Just think tomorrow night I'll be Mrs. Bertrand B. Armstead!"

"Yes, that's right," said Ellen soberly, drawing her needle through the chintz. She pricked her finger and in the flurry that followed the conversation was abandoned.

Presently Ellen felt her fear subside. She had been filling her head with a lot of nonsense. People loved each other in all kinds of ways. Steven with his infinite kindness would never demand anything she could not give. Myra and Bert—well, they were Myra and Bert.

LATER after that strange embarrassment had worn away, Ellen talked with Bert. He was hailing bright red oilcloth on the kitchenette shelves when she went to wash her hands. He seemed entirely absorbed in his task but Ellen sensed that he wanted to speak to her, so she dried her hands and waited.

"I haven't had a chance to tell you," he said presently, "what a boost you've given Myra and me—particularly me. I'm going to make good at Barclay's. Steven has been—well, he's been swell! He's given me a chance but he's made it clear that I'll have to make good on my own. And I'm going to!"

"I know you will, Bert."

"I'm sorry I made such a fuss about the clothes," he persisted uncomfortably. "Myra looks like a queen in them. But I—I hope you understand what I mean. A man wants to do things for his wife himself. You do understand, don't you?"

"Perfectly!" Ellen retorted. "I won't dip in again."

Nor would she. She understood now why the draperies Myra had found at such a bargain meant far more to her than the wardrobe selected with no thought of expense.

Her mother was more difficult. To her and to Mike, Steven represented a kind of perpetual Santa Claus. Already Mike was outrageously spoiled. His hospital room overflowed with Steven's gifts and though Mike hardly looked at them he still demanded a new present of every visitor.

Ellen hoped when she and Steven sailed things would be different. She had tried to talk seriously to her mother, to arrange somehow that she should budget her expenditures. Despite Ellen's pleas Steven had opened a generous account for his prospective mother-in-law and Molly appeared to be trying to clear it out as quickly as possible. Already Molly had managed to fill the apartment with strange purchases that apparently had been made only because she had the money to make them.

After a few feeble efforts Ellen gave up trying to pound sense into the pretty little head of the mother who ever since her sixteenth birthday had been demonstrating her ignorance of life and her unfitness to cope with it.

ELLEN yielded on every point except one. She drew the line there sharply. The argument occurred when Molly suggested that she should send a note announcing her marriage to her Aunt Myra.

"Why should I?" Ellen asked shortly. "She wouldn't be interested."

"Why, Ellen Rossiter! Your own aunt!"

"My own aunt may have sent us boxes," Ellen interrupted impatiently, "but she hasn't written a line in all those years."

"Aren't you going to look her up when you're in London?"

"Certainly not!"

"But things are different now," said Molly.

"I believe you want me to look her up to high-hat her," Ellen laughed. "Confess! Isn't that it?"

Molly hastily denied the allegation, but her cheeks were pink and she was suspiciously gracious when Ellen flatly refused to call on her aunt in London.

Then quickly, oh, so quickly, the last night of Ellen's girlhood arrived. It was very late when she and Myra got into bed. Heroically they agreed not to talk but they might as well have for all the sleep Ellen got. She lay in the warm darkness, thinking, thinking.

She was safe tonight, alone, inviolate.

But tomorrow night?

Steven wasn't the man she wanted to marry. She would have to tell him in the morning. Oh, she couldn't, she couldn't! If she told him he would go away very quietly. He was proud but she would break his heart even though he hid the deathly hurt. She would break the heart of a man who had given her everything.

It was too late now. She could not cause that look to come into his eyes, that look of utter humiliation. She could not tell Steven that all along she had been mistaken. If he were a younger man perhaps—but Steven was not young. She could not humiliate him in a way a thousand times worse than she herself had been humiliated. She knew what that suffering was. He must be saved from that.

Perhaps she was only nervous. People talked so. It was the darkness that frightened her, the brooding, quiet darkness. If she could see Steven again she would not be frightened. She would know he was kind and gentle.

Toward morning she fell into an uneasy sleep.

Our school closed Friday. Although attendance has been quite low the past week, a number of pupils have returned to take examinations.

Lois Lloyd is improving rapidly, after a very hard spell of pneumonia.

W. A. Poole and son, Earl, and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hinds left Saturday for Fletcher and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mrs. Vera Reeves and children Olen and Kathaleen spent the week end with Mrs. Reeves parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Derryberry.

Guy Tate was the Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Samuel.

Dock Samuel made a triy to town Saturday.

Several members of Sam Breeding's family have measles. We hope for them a quick recovery.

O. F. Lloyd and Faye Samuel, who are attending school in Hope, spent the week end with home folks.

Mrs. Claude Burke entertained the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades of this school, with a party at her home Wednesday night. After a number of enjoyable games, te hostess served delightful refreshments. Everyone reported very nice time.

The Chinese army at Shanghai pulled a fast one. It reteated so rapidly the Japs didn't have time to change their demands before the Chinese had complied with the old ones.

The largest increase in Indiana automobile registration was in 1919 and 1925.

As Japs Landed for Final Drive

Intense excitement and joy pervaded the Japanese concession at Shanghai, China, as additional troops of the Mikado landed to overcome stubborn resistance of the Chinese defenders on the edge of the city. The upper picture shows Japanese civilians cheering soldiers of the Ninth division of the Nippon army as they marched through the streets shortly after arrival. Lower picture shows guns of the Woosung forts, where the Chinese made such stubborn resistance against the Jap attack despite inadequate equipment.

Mary Nolan Faces Prison Sentence

Film Actress Convicted of Failure to Pay Gown Shop Wages

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Mary Nolan, film actress, faces immediate possibility of imprisonment as the result of her conviction Wednesday of eight violations of state labor laws.

Climaxing a long series of financial difficulties the girl, who as Imogene Wilson was one of the striking beauties of the New York musical comedy stage, was found guilty of failure to pay wages.

Each of the eight charges carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $500 fine. Municipal Judge Clement Nye instructed Miss Nolan to appear at 2 p. m. Thursday for sentence.

Her husband, Wallace T. Macrery, was convicted of nine similar charges and also is to be sentenced Thursday.

The charges against Miss Nolan were presented by eight former employes of the gown shop opened here after she had changed her name and entered motion pictures.

Health Study Course Held by Saratoga P.-T. A.

SARATOGA, Ar.—Miss Louise Gant was the leader of the third lesson of the health study course of the Saratoga Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday.

The program was: "How does a child's mental attitude affect his health habits?" Mrs. Ches. McLarey, Jr.; "When and how should we begin training for good health habits?" Mrs. C. T. Wallace; "It is not enough to provide a child with general rules of health," Mrs. C. Elmer Sloan; "Every home should have a daily program with the family co-operating," Mrs. Glen Ellis; "Does your child go to bed at a reasonable hour in a pleasant atmosphere that will foster rest, or is he sent to bed by nagging?" Mrs. M. D. Fricks.

The finance committee organized a basketball team which will compete at basketball games here, as a means of raising money.

The first grade pupils, under the direction of Miss Bessie Mae Polk, presented a playet and two songs.

Magnolia Student Winner of Watch in Contest

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—Thomas Silvey of Bodcaw, student of Magnolia A. & M. college had received a watch Tuesday as a prize given by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda company for growing the best three acres of cotton at the least cost of production.

Eighteen watches are given by the company in Arkansas each year to the 4-H Club boys who grow the most cotton at the greatest net profit. The only requirement made by the company is that 100 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda be used on each acre.

Silvey did his work under supervision of Harley Dampf, Smith-Hughes teacher at Bodcaw.

New Fish Net Treatment Seen as Money Saver

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The bureau of fisheries has found a way, it says, for commercial fishermen to save millions of dollars annually.

Savings are now possible, says Commissioner Henry O'Malley, through treatments developed by the bureau which are expected to double the life of heavy types of fish nets and in many instances to double the strength of the twine.

Heavy nets, which at present give average service of about one and one-half-years, are given lengthened life through application of toxic dyes to the cotton during thread manufacture and use of a specification coal tar for mechanical protection in the webbing.

Rum Running Truck Is Seized on Texas Road

LAREDO, Texas.—(AP)—Customs officers seized a rum running truck on the Zapata highway Tuesday night and confiscated a full load of smuggled Mexican liquor which they found concealed in specially-constructed oil drums. Destination of the load had not been determined. An American found in the vicinity of the truck was arrested.

There are 31 persons to every 100,000 in Indiana in county poor asylums.

Valls Bluff May Build Warehouse

Transportation Firm Seeks To Revive River Traffic to New Orleans

VALLS BLUFF—At a meeting of the Lions Club here Wednesday Capt. Robert H. Romunder, president of the Choctaw Transportation Company, with headquarters at Memphis, asked the co-operation of the club and town of DeValls Bluff in building a warehouse and possibly a cotton compress for transportation of cotton, rice and other heavy merchandise between DeValls Bluff and New Orleans.

Captain Romunder said he has a contract with a Little Rock firm to haul two barges of cotton from here to New Orleans as soon as a road to the White river landing can be placed in condition.

A director of the Arkansas Rice Growers Co-operative Association said that should the warehouse be built the association would provide storage space and shipping facilities for handling much of the association's rice.

A committee if busness men and members of the Lions Club was appointed to co-operate with the transportation company in establishing the warehouse. Captain Romunder met with the Town Council after the Lions Club meeting and was assured that a road to the river landing would be started at once.

The Choctaw Transportation Company now is operating three steamers on the White river, which is navigable from here throughout the year.

Ohio State's New Pool Scene of Big Ten Meet

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP)—Ohio State University's new $350,000 natatorium, in less than five months, will be the scene of the mid-west's largest swimming meet this spring when the Big Ten conference championships are staged here March 11 and 12.

With all schools expected to be represented except Indiana and Purdue, a good field is assured in the nine events comprising the twoday program.

The new pool is the university's most important addition to its athletic plant since the stadium was built in 1922. The stadium and natatorium and gymnasium ae so arranged that additions can be constructed later.

Now is the time to start a campaign to get the delegates out of Geneva before Christmas.

Famous Religious Statue Destroyed by Vandals

Once a world-famous work of art—now a jumble of wreckage. Throughout Europe a search is being conducted for the vandals who broke into the Cathedral of Valencia, Spain, stole all the jewels on the statue "Purisima," and then knocked the statue down with the resultant destruction pictured here. At the right detectives are seen seeking clues to the thieves.

Presbyterian Minister Heads Arkansas S. A. R.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—The Rev. John Van Lear, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, is the new president of the Arkansas Division of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He was recently elected to succeed E. C. Newton, who was chosen delegate to the national convention May 19 in Washington.

Other new officers are W. H. Arnold, Texarkana, first vice president; W. D. Worthington, Little Rock, second vice president; J. O. Blakency, Little Rock, secretary-treasurer and historian, and Dr. E. B. McDonald, Little Rock, registrar.

Mexico Is Planning To Coin More Silver

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—The treasury department of the national government prepared Thursday to begin coining additional silver money to relieve a shortage of currency and to stabilize the exchange situation.

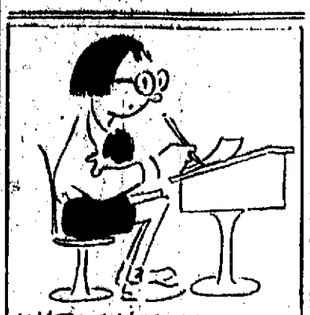

The plan was announced Wednesday night by Secretary of the Treasury Alberto J. Pani. It was said to be the first step in a financial reconstruction program.

Much of Mexico's financial ills could be traced to a shortage of money and a consequent lack of confidence coincident with the world-wide depression the secretary said.

Ernest Goff, of Mishawaka, O., lived after being shot in the brain with a .22 calibre rifle bullet.

Dance Friday Night on Stage of Saenger

There will be a dance on the Saenger stage Friday night at the end of the last feature picture showing. A pleasant surprise is in store for the participants in the dance inasmuch as the theatre in co-operation with the Alpha Omega fraternity has secured an orchestra out of Texarkana. As usual, refreshments will be served free of charge. Dancing privileges are free with each main floor admission ticket. The feature picture is "Ladies of the Big House" starring Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond.

Shot Wrong Man

HOUSTON, Texas.—Police rushed to the home of a citizen on Wichita avenue. He had reported he shot a prowler. When officers arrived they found a man staggering around in the yard next door. He was identified as the brother of a neighbor of the man who shot him. He had taken some friends home after a party and attempted to break into the wrong house. His wounds were not serious.

FORTALEZA, Brazil.—(AP)—Importation from the United States of cotton to be used in manufacturing here, has been protested by the commercial association on the ground that it may bring the boll weevil to this cotton growing section.

A SECTION OF A LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO WAREHOUSE WHERE TOBACCOS ARE STORED TO AGE AND MELLOW

A 90 million dollar reason why Chesterfields are Better!

Just think what this means for Chesterfield smokers. It means that the larger part of 90 million dollars is invested in Domestic and Turkish tobaccos that are being properly aged in Nature's way, and cured so as to make them sweeter and milder.

CHESTERFIELD tobacco is packed in wooden casks, each containing about 1,000 pounds, and stored for two years in modern, up-to-date warehouses.

These warehouses, if placed end-to-end, would be about four miles in length. From floor to ceiling they are filled with these casks of fine tobacco, ageing in Nature's slow but sure way.

It takes a lot of money to make a good cigarette—money to buy good tobaccos and money to age them properly.

CHESTERFIELDS are milder, and taste better ... there's a 90 million dollar reason why! Just try them!

● "Music that Satisfies." Hear Nat Shilkret's 35-piece orchestra and Alex Gray, soloist, every night except Sunday—entire Columbia Network—10:30 Eastern Standard Time.
